

atlanta compromise apush definition

AI generated article from Bing

Atlanta Compromise Speech Definition - AP US History Key Term | Fiveable

Definition The Atlanta Compromise Speech was a pivotal address delivered by Booker T. Washington in 1895, advocating for the economic advancement of African Americans through vocational education and gradual integration into society.

APUSH Terms Chapter 19 Flashcards | Quizlet

A speech made by Washington in Atlanta that outlined the philosophy that blacks should focus on economic gains, go to school, learn skills, and work their way up the ladder and that Southern whites should help out to create an unresentful people. Atlanta Compromise.

Atlanta Compromise | Speech, History, Analysis, & Transcript - Britannica

Atlanta Compromise, classic statement on race relations articulated by Booker T. Washington, a leading Black educator in the United States in the late 19th century.

Atlanta Compromise - Wikipedia

The Atlanta Compromise (also known as accommodation or accommodationism) was a proposal put forth in 1895 by African American leader Booker T. Washington in a speech he gave at the Cotton States and International Exposition.

Atlanta Compromise Speech - New Georgia Encyclopedia

The Atlanta Compromise represented Booker T. Washington's strategy for addressing the Negro problem and has long served as the basis for contrasting Washington's views with those of Du Bois.

Booker T. Washington Delivers the 1895 Atlanta Compromise Speech

On September 18, 1895, African-American spokesman and leader Booker T. Washington spoke before a predominantly white audience at the Cotton States and International Exposition in Atlanta.

Atlanta Compromise | Research Starters | EBSCO Research

Washington's message was intended to foster racial harmony and economic cooperation, suggesting that African Americans should prioritize economic empowerment over immediate demands for social equality.

The Atlanta Compromise: Booker T. Washington's Vision for Black ...

He stressed an accommodation point of view and believed that greater political and social equality for blacks would come naturally if they first established an economic base. This selection is from the speech Washington made in 1895 at the opening of the Atlanta Cotton States and International Exposition. ...

Atlanta Compromise Definition - African American History - 1865 to ...

The Atlanta Compromise was an agreement articulated by Booker T. Washington in 1895, which suggested that African Americans should accept disenfranchisement and social segregation for the time being in exchange for economic opportunities and vocational training.

Atlanta Compromise | Encyclopedia.com

This "compromise" epitomized the accommodationist ideology of racial self-help that came to be associated with Booker T. Washington's leadership in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.