

criminological theory the essentials 4th edition pdf

AI generated article from Bing

Expedition 20 - NASA

During Expedition 20, the crew took images of the Earth views, the orbiting station, their daily lives aboard and the experiments they conducted during their stay, plus so much more.

List of International Space Station expeditions - Wikipedia

An expedition to the International Space Station (ISS) is a permanent crew rotation occupying the space station and using it for space research and testing. An expedition can last up to six months and may include between two and seven crew members.

Expedition 20 - worldspaceflight.com

Crew: Final members Gennadi Padalka, Expedition Commander (Russia) Michael Barratt (USA) Nicole Stott (USA) Frank De Winne (Belgium) Roman Romanenko (Russia) Robert Thirsk (Canada) Former members Koichi Wakata (Japan) Timothy Kopra (USA) Backup: Maksim Surayev (Russia) (for Padalka) Shannon Walker (USA) (for Barratt) Soichi Noguchi (Japan)

ISS: Expedition 20 - SPACEFACTS

Nicole Stott replaced NASA astronaut Timothy Kopra as a long-duration crew member on the space station and a member of the Expedition 20 and 21 crews. Nicole Stott spent three months on the complex while Timothy Kopra returned home aboard Discovery.

ISS Expedition 20 Fact Sheet | Spaceline

Crew: Frank De Winne Roman Romanenko Robert B. Thirsk Launch: May 27, 2009 (Soyuz TMA-15)

Expedition 20 | National Aeronautics and Space Administration Wiki | Fandom

Expedition 20 was the 20th long-duration flight to the International Space Station. The expedition marked the first time a six-member crew inhabited the station.

List of crew of the International Space Station - Wikiwand

This is a list of crew to the International Space Station, in alphabetical order. Current ISS crew names are in bold. The suffix (twice, thrice, ...) refers to...

Expedition 20 - Wikipedia

Expedition 20 was the 20th long-duration flight to the International Space Station. The expedition marked the first time a six-member crew inhabited the station.

Expedition 20 Explained

Expedition 20 was the 20th long-duration flight to the International Space Station. The expedition marked the first time a six-member crew inhabited the station.

List of crew of the International Space Station - Wikipedia

Current ISS crew names are in bold. The suffix (twice, thrice, ...) refers to the individual's number of spaceflights to the ISS, not the total number of spaceflights.