Klaus (2019) - A fantastic film & Norm MacDonald's last movie role

It's that time of the year and my wife and I are getting into the Christmas moves. As we rewatched Klaus from 2019, we were quickly greeted by the sound of Norm MacDonald's unmistakeable voice playing the role of the smart-alec, sarcastic, hilariously witty boat captain Mogens. I won't get into a whole tangent on the film itself, because it's a phenomenal movie in every way I can think ...

Official Discussion: Klaus [SPOILERS] : r/movies - Reddit

Klaus captured that magic of the Disney Renaissance era in a way that I haven't felt in years. Wikipedia mentioned that he had the goal of creating a 2D animated film in the way he envisioned the genre would have evolved if Disney hadn't gone down their current path of 3D animation. I really hope to see more films like this in the future.

Klaus (2019) is a wonderful animation movie about Christmas.

Klaus consoles his friend. As they finish the last of their drink, Klaus stands and says he has to be going as usual. But this time, he holds a hand out to Jesper and asks if he would like to come, he needs help at the workshop, and Alva is waiting for him. Then both friends disappear in a twinkling of lights.

The ending of Klaus was bullshit and completely missed all of the ...

Klaus finds out that a child in the town is bored and upset so in attempt to cheer him up, gives him a toy in the middle of the night with Jesper. The rest of the movie has Jesper and Klaus bond and deliver presents to the kids of the town to the dismay of the two clans.

How powerful is Klaus Mikaelson exactly? : r/TheOriginals - Reddit

Klaus was a werewolf before he was turned (albeit untriggered) and becoming a vampire enhanced that. And when he seems to get serious, he seems to be strong enough to hold down Elijah without Eljah being able to effectively resist (see the ending of S2E19 and Gia's death in S2E21).
