My document is off center and shifted towards the left side of the page ...

A document moves to the left side of the canvas to make room for comments and suggested edits, as those are positioned outside the document. Even if you haven't created any comments/suggested edits or if you have close/resolved the ones that were created, there isn't any way to manually force the page back to the center of the canvas.

Left, Has Left or Is Left? - English Language Learners Stack Exchange

Align part of the line to the left and the other part of the line to ...
