Is it correct to say your pronouns are "she/they" or should it be "she ...

In short, "she/they" is the most common way for a person to indicate that they go by "she/her" or "they/them" pronouns, likely with a preference for the former. It is not incorrect. Note: While "she/they" is commonly used by feminine-leaning non-binary people, a great deal of women (both cis and trans) also go by it.

word usage - Reason for the current trend to use «she» as the gender ...

Taken from the Free Online Dictionary: Usage Note: Using she as a generic or gender-neutral singular pronoun is more common than might be expected, given the continuing debate regarding the parallel use of he. In a 1989 article from the Los Angeles Times, for instance, writer Dan Sullivan notes, "What's wrong with reinventing the wheel?"

Which is correct: "This is her" or "This is she"? [duplicate]

Upon answering the telephone, the person calling asks if Joan is available. If Joan is the person who answered the phone, should she say "This is her" or "This is she"?

who is she □□ who is her□ - □□

According to grammar rules, it should be "This is she", because "is" is a linking verb (a verb that connects the subject to more information about the subject), so it can't have an object ("her"), but it's becoming increasingly common to say, "This is her" now. To avoid this confusion, you could say, "This is Gabriel"
