Does anyone know how “Let’s Go!” became an exclamation ... - Reddit

Obviously, I can see how “Let’s go!” (get ice cream!), for example, became an exclamation. But I don’t really see how it transitioned to a sports context, e.g. “Let’s go Dodgers!” (Let us go Dodgers??). Or more generally, “LET’S GOOO” as an exclamation when something good happens in a sports context. Thanks in advance if anyone knows!

Why do americans always yell Lets go at the END of something?

I see this so often in videos on YouTube or elsewhere, for example some guys try to do a stunt and when it finally is successful, everyone goes LETS GOOO. It may be my autism but i find this extremely annoying (besides the fact that i find the yelling annoying per se), since what you tried to accomplish is now finished, so why scream Lets go?
